

Benevolent Intentions

Decolonizing the Religious Liberal Imperial Mind, An American Story

Addressing topics from America's imperial era that remain current, this book describes the intersection of religious liberalism and imperialism and identifies the disproportionately large number of religious liberals who were in positions to direct and enforce colonial hegemony. The results have been lasting and continue to be headline news.

“Muir opens the door for truth-telling which is an important first step to co-creating more just and equitable futures.” —Alicia R. Forde, Texas Methodist Foundation

“At a time when powerful forces aim to whitewash US history, Muir insists that we must first grapple with its unwelcome truths if we are to secure more just futures.” — Tisa Wenger, Yale University

“In this era of neo-imperialist rhetoric and posturing, Muir’s book reminds us that we have been here before.” — Mark Morrison-Reed, author of Black Pioneers in a White Denomination

“With the help of Muir’s insights and analysis we are better equipped to move beyond the tragic limits of ‘benevolent intentions’ to become more faithful builders of beloved community.” — Rebecca Ann Parker, President Emerita, Starr King School for the Ministry

463 pages with bibliography & index

Cost: $40 ($30+shipping).

Pay by Venmo, PayPal, Zelle, or check made out to “Fredric Muir” and mail to: Fredric Muir, PO Box 3099, Annapolis, MD 21403.

Email order to FredMuir@gmail.com with your

Fredric Muir is the author and/or contributing editor of six books as well as numerous publications on liberal religious themes: Charles Darwin, religious language, healthy boundaries for clergy, the centering of love in liberal religion, mentoring, and liberal religious history. He received his Master of Divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary (NY) and his Doctor of Ministry from Wesley Theological Seminary (DC) where liberation theology shaped both his personal convictions and theological vision. For 25 years he has shared a consulting ministry in the Philippines. He is Minister Emeritus of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Annapolis (MD).