

[Prospect Heights Universalist Society]

from AMONG THE CHURCHES

The Prospect Heights Universalist Church held services last Sunday evening in its new meeting rooms in the Mollenhauer College of Music, 225 Lincoln place, near Eighth avenue. Notwithstanding the severity of the weather, a goodly number of appreciative people listened to an eloquent discourse by the Rev. Lewis Edwin Pease, formerly pastor of the Church of Our Father [First Universalist, Brooklyn]. To-morrow evening the Rev. A. Ellsworth Wright will speak upon "The Idea of God." It is hoped that the "liberal" people of the Park slope will improve this opportunity to attend this series of meetings in behalf of the "larger hope." G. W. Stillwell, jr., will lead the Y.P.C.U. meeting in the evening, the topic being "The Value of Sects—of Our Sect."

from CHURCH NEWS

The Prospect Heights Universalist parish is meeting with much success in the movement recently started in the Mollenhauer College of Music, 225 Lincoln place, near Eighth avenue, to establish a liberal church on the Park Slope. To-morrow evening the Rev. Alice Kinney Wright will preach on "The Book of Books." The Sunday school meets in the afternoon. The Young People's Christian Union meeting in the evening will be led by the Rev. A. E. Wright. The subject will be "God, Our Father."
