

[Nelson, Madison Co. NY.]

Improvements in Town—Nelson

There was many years ago a flourishing Universalist society here and a church edifice was built in 1842, which was subsequently and now used for a town hall. The church is not now in active existence.

John E. Smith, Our Country and Its People; a Descriptive and Biographical Record of Madison county, N.Y.

(Boston: The Boston History Co., 1899), p. 386

Transcribed on 18 Jul 2011 by Karen E. Dau of Rochester, NY