

To Abandon Universalist Institute

Special to the New York Times

UTICA, April 20.—The Executive Committee of the State Universalist Convention has decided against the rebuilding of the Clinton Liberal Institute, at Fort Plain, and after the present school year what is left of the institution will be transferred to and made a part of the St. Lawrence University, Canton, St. Lawrence County. The Fort Plain institution is one of the largest secular schools in the State, and is directed by a board of trustees, subject to the State Universalist Convention. The institute building was much damaged by fire about two months ago.
