

[Seitz, Josiah A.]

REV. JOSHIA A. SEITZ [sic] DIED AT CASCOB, CONN.
Announcement is Made By His Son, Don Seitz of the New York World—Sketch of His Career

New York, Sept. 30.—The death at Coscob, Conn., today of the Rev. Dr. Joshia [sic] A. Seitz, preacher, editor and horticulturist, was announced by his son, Don Seitz, of the New York World.

Born in Melmore, O., in 1837, he was graduated from Oberlin college and later became a teacher and a doctor of medicine. In 1867 he entered the ministry of the Universalist church. After work in Adrian and Attica, O., eh took a theological course at St. Lawrence university, Canton, N.Y., and subsequently filled pulpits in Nyack, Malone and Harlem [all in NY].

Later in Norway, Me., he established and edited a denominational newspaper the New Religion. In 1882 he established at Conway, N.H., the White Mountain News. He then held pulpits in West Concord, Vermont, and New Britain, Conn., and went to Coscob in 1895, devoting himself to literature and horticulture. He wrote a number of denominational works.

Evening Journal, Jamestown NY, Sat. 30 Sep 1922

Transcribed on 9 Nov 2014 by Karen E. Dau of Rochester, NY

[Seitz, Josiah A.]

DEATH OF REV. JOSIAH A. SEITZ

Rev. Josiah A. Seitz died Sept. 3, 1922, at Cos Cob, Conn. He was born in Melmore, Ohio, March 27, 1837, and after a term at Oberlin College became a teacher and later a doctor of medicine. In 1867 he entered the ministry at the Universalist Church, holding parishes at Adrian and Attica, Ohio. He then took a theological course at St. Lawrence University, Canton, New York, and subsequently filled pulpits at Malone, Nyack and Harlem, N.Y., going in 1876 to Norway, Maine, where besides his church work he established in 1878, and edited, a denominational newspaper, The New Religion. This was removed in 1882 to North Conway, N.H., where he also established The White Mountain News. Subsequently he held pulpits in West Concord, Vt., and New Britain, Conn., returning to Cos Cob in 1895, where he devoted himself to literary and horticultural pursuits. He wrote a number of denominational works, a vesper service for the church and "The Colloquy," a philosophical poem.

He is survived by his widow, who was Rebecca J. Brown, to whom he was married sixty-one years ago, and a son, Don C. Seitz, of the New York World.

Universalist Leader, Boston MA, Sat. 14 Oct 1922

Transcribed on 26 Aug 2016 by Karen E. Dau of Rochester, NY