

[Ackley, Charles S.]

HOME MATTERS.

—Charles S. Ackley, Esq., of Davenport, Iowa, died on the 26th ult., aged 62 years. He was a son of Rev. Oliver Ackley, a Universalist preacher who settled in Geneva in 1838. He was a brother of A. N. [Anson Nelson] Ackley, of this village. The deceased was at one time proprietor of the American Hotel in Geneva. In 1855 he settled in Davenport where he soon took a prominent part in politics. He held the office of deputy sheriff, and later, was street commissioner in that city. Seven years ago he became proprietor of the Ackley House in Davenport, which under his management became very popular with the traveling public. His death was occasioned by asthma.

Watkins Express, Watkins NY, Thu. 10 Dec 1874

Transcribed on 30 Dec 2012 by Karen E. Dau of Rochester, NY