

[Adams, Sophie M. Demarest]

In this city, on Tuesday morning, Feb. 5th, Mrs. Sophie M., wife of Mr. S. Gardner Adams, and eldest daughter of P. P. Demarest, Esq., in the 26th year of her age. Death is sad indeed when it takes such away. Mrs. Adams was one of those choice spirits who are beloved by all, and who make it the constant purpose of their lives to be faithful and useful. One of the best and most thoughtful of daughters, she was one of the tenderest and most devoted of wives and mothers, and one of the most loving and constant of friends. Her whole life was toned to the key-note of duty, and pervaded by a spirit of religious consecration. One of the original members of the Sixth Universalist Sunday School, and reared by devoted Universalist parents, she well illustrated the influence of Universalism as an element of culture, and the type of character it is fitted to produce.. God comfort the bereaved, and tenderly care for the motherless children, and help all who knew her to be impressed and profited by the lessons which she has left us.
