STRING ENSEMBLE FOUNDER PASSES
Harry Bastianelli Drops Dead in Store

Originator of the string ensemble, "Bastianelli Trio," Harry Bastianelli, 73, of 310 Seneca Parkway, is dead today. He was stricken with a heart attack in a downtown store yesterday afternoon, and died in a few minutes. Helen Bastianelli, his daughter, was with him.

His love of music inspired the stringed combination whose members first included two daughters and a son. During the past few years, however, his daughter Helen and two other young women have carried on.

Surviving is one other daughter, Mrs. Charles [Marie] Holzwarth.
