

[Chapman, Heman S.]

DEATHS.

In Canajoharie, Sept. 10, 1864, Mr. HEMAN S. CHAPMAN. Mr. Chapman had ben in feeble health for years, and was about his work upon his farm until the day of his death. His death was very sudden to himself and his friends. He was engaged in harnessing his team when he was attacked, and carried to his bed, and died the same evening. He was an upright, honest, and highly esteemed citizen and neighbor, and had been a life-long consistent devoted Universalist. He left a wife in feeble health , and brothers and sisters, and numerous friends to mourn his departure. May the Christian faith and hope which he cherished be the consolation of all who mourn.
