

[Dillenback, George W.]

DIED OF BLOOD POISONING

George W. Dillenback, a highly esteemed farmer of Rex, town of Minden, died Wednesday from the effects of blood poisoning, caused from having a sliver run into the knuckle of one of his hands about ten days since. He was aged 39 years and 2 months. Deceased is survived by his widow and three young sons, and by his aged father, one brother William, of Rex, and two sisters, Mrs. William Zoller of Fort Plain and Mrs. Irving Van Ness of Cobleskill. The funeral will be held at his late home Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. S. D. Butler of the Universalist church officiating.

Evening Recorder, Amsterdam NY, Thu. 3 Dec 1903

Transcribed on 23 Sep 2009 by Karen E. Dau of Rochester, NY