R. C. DINGMAN, 68, DOLGEVILLE, DIES
Native of Canajoharie Was Long Active In IOOF

DOLGEVILLE—Randolph C. Dingman, 68, passed away at his home of Elm street in this village Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Dingman had been seriously ill for the past several months. He was born March 10, 1871 in Canajoharie, son of John Dingman and Morgiana Canfield Dingman. He has [had] resided in this village for the past 45 years and for many years was a blacksmith. He retired from that work about 18 years ago on account of his health. He was married for the second time to Kathryn Wagner in 1919 who survives him together with three sons, John and Frank Dingman of this village and William of Canajoharie; two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Reynolds, Canajoharie, and Mrs. Elizabeth Newman of St. Johnsville; and one step-son, Emil Wagner. He was a former fire chief of this village and an exempt fireman of the Alfred Dolge Hose company. He was a former active member of the Odd Fellows and a few years ago received a 25-year pin from that fraternity. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his home. The Rev. C. [Clinton] A. Moulton [Universalist] will officiate.
