

[Doubleday, Amelia Pratt]

Mrs. Amelia Pratt Doubleday

Mrs. Amelia Pratt Doubleday, whose death last Thursday morning was briefly noted in last week's REPUBLICAN, was born in Homer and was in infancy adopted by David and Electra Pratt of this town. She was married in 1845 to John W. Doubleday of East Scott, and resided there with her husband until his death in 1860. After his death she bought a home in this village and has since resided here except for a year or two spent at the home of her brother F. [Frank] F. Pratt. She had no children but is survived by one brother, F. F. Pratt, of Homer, and a sister, Mrs. Caroline E Wood of Aurora, Ill.

The funeral was held Sunday at 1 p.m., from the late home in Williams street, Rev. W. D. Potter, pastor of the Universalist church of Cortland, officiating. Burial was made in Glenwood cemetery where the remains of her husband lie.

Homer Republican, Homer NY, Thu. 24 Oct 1907

Homer.

The funeral of Mrs. Amelia Doubleday of William-st., who died at Cortland hospital last Thursday was held at her late residence Sunday at one o'clock. Rev. W. D. Potter, pastor of the Cortland Universalist church officiating. Mrs. Doubleday was in feeble health for many years. She was 86 years of age, the widow of John W. Doubleday who died in 1860. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Caroline E. Wood of Aurora, Ill. and a brother, Frank E. [F.] Pratt of Homer.

Cortland Democrat, Cortland NY, Fri. 25 Oct 1907