

[Farman, Louisa]

—Louisa Farman departed this life Jan. 16, 1897, aged 73 years and 4 months. The subject of this sketch was born in the town of Henderson, where she spent her whole life. She was the daughter of the late John Farman, Esq., one of the old landmarks of the town. She lived a life of celibacy at home with her parents as long as they lived and her devotion to their welfare in their old age is in the highest degree commendable. She was a lady of irreproachable character and of high standing in the community where she resided. She was lively in society which made her a general favorite among her many friends. She was optimistic in her religious views and believed that God is too great and good to have one soul forever cast out. Such views naturally led her to join the Universalist church of which she was a consistent attendant all her life. Her funeral was held at her late residence, Rev. S. G. Ayes, pastor of the Universalist church, conducting the ceremonies. Her remains were interred in the Carpenter cemetery.
