

[Farwell, Caroline C.]

DIED—In the village of Watertown, Jefferson co., N.Y., on the 27th ult., after a very painful sickness, Mrs. CAROLINE C. FARWELL, consort of Mr. James Farwell, aged 24 years. Early in life, Mrs. Farwell was called to perform the duties of the married state, in circumstances which seemed to require the exercise of a sound and mature judgment. Being possessed of an affectionate heart and discerning mind, she performed all the duties of a step-mother and a mother, in such a manner as to meet the fondest expectations of her now bereaved husband and friends. She has left an untarnished reputation, and was most endeared to those who knew her best. For several years she has been firmly established in the belief of Universalism, a doctrine very generally despised in theory, but uniformly reduced to practice by all those who perform the duties of good citizens and good Christians. Mrs. F. received much satisfaction from her religious faith, while in health—and in her last sickness, it gave her that joy which is “unspeakable and full of glory.”

There was a very striking similarity between the two excellent women which Mr. Farwell has lost. Each left a well merited “good name”—each buried a daughter—each left two sons—and each died triumphant in the faith of the impartial salvation of God.

On the 30th ult., Mrs. F’s funeral was attended by a crowded and very attentive audience, when a discourse appropriate to the occasion, was delivered from Eccl. vii.1. “A good name is better than precious ointment, and the day of one’s death than the day of one’s birth.”
