

[Graham, Clara M.]

DIED—In Rochester, Dec. 24, 1866, of consumption, Miss Clara M. Graham, aged 20 years. Many will remember with a pleasing sadness the virtues of the deceased...On the Sabbath before her death she expressed a desire to be baptized, with which wish her pastor, Rev. A[sa] Saxe [of First Universalist church], gladly complied. After bidding her much loved friends her last goodbye, and leaving a little token of affection for each of them, she passed quietly and happily to the beautiful home. Thus were loving parents, brothers and sister bereaved; and many young friends and schoolmates lose a beloved companion. Yet our loss was her infinite gain.
