ERNEST C. GREEN

The death of Ernest C. Green at Gowanda in his ninety-second year removes one of the last of the old warrior-type of Universalists in the western part of the state. He could quote pages of Hosea Ballou's writings and longed for the return of the same brand of preaching in these days. He was known in the section for his Universalism and was favorably known the faith that was in him. The funeral service was conducted by Dr. Bruce Swift on February 23.
