

[Hubbard, Elizabeth Wood]

DEATHS.

In Exeter, January 26th, Mrs. ELIZABETH HUBBARD, wife of Delos Hubbard and daughter of Noah and Paulina Wood, of Salina, aged 23 years.

In the death of the above individual, society is bereaved of one of its brightest members, and of one on whose cheek the rose of health but a few days previous to her death, bloomed as gaily as in any that now live to mourn her loss. Having been married to Mr. Hubbard but fourteen months, she fell asleep amid the fairest prospects of life; too soon to say farewell to her parents; who, being informed of her sudden illness, were hastening to her residence; but who arrived only in time to behold her sleeping beautifully in death.

That she was greatly beloved by her friends and acquaintances, was seen in the intense grief and solemn mourning, manifested when they knew she was no more. While she lived she was a Universalist in faith and practice. She is gone! but her bright examples of moral excellence and amiableness of character will remain as an everlasting monument in the memories of those who enjoyed the pleasure of her society.

The funeral was attended on the 28th in the Union church of Exeter, where the consolations of the Gospel were administered to a large circle of mourning friends (assisted by Br. Hathaway) by the writer. Text—Luke viii: 52—'She is not dead, but sleepeth.'
