

[Nobles, Olivia J.]

DEATHS.

In Stantonsburgh, N. C., March 15, 1857, Mrs. OLIVIA J. NOBLES, wife of John W. Nobles, M.D., aged 26 years, 9 months, and 15 days. The subject of this obituary had been slightly ill for several weeks previous to her decease, but no alarming symptoms had indicated to her family the near approach of her dissolution; and while her husband was absent from home attending to the duties of his profession, her gentle spirit passed away. By her accomplishments of mind and person, and her amiable disposition, she had endeared herself to a large circle of acquaintances. These now mourn her early exit.—But while they mourn she rejoices. And though a shining light has suddenly been extinguished on earth, yet a star is new-born to the cloudless sky of heaven. Her husband, as the last sad tribute of affectionate regard, accompanied her remains from his home in the South, to Marshall, Oneida Co., N.Y., her native place, where her parents and other relations reside. Her funeral was attended in the Universalist Church in Marshall, on the 21st, by a numerous assemblage of sympathising friends and acquaintances, to whom the writer endeavored to present the hopes and consolations of the Bible.—Upon the bereaved husband, and the two little children, now motherless, we humbly invoke the divine blessing.
