

[Prentiss, Emily M.]

MISS EMILY M. PRENTISS

At her late residence, 24 South Seventh street, where she had resided for nearly fifty years, occurred the death of Emily M. Prentiss, aged 66 years, Thursday morning about 1:50 o'clock.

Miss Prentiss had been in poor health for the last fifteen years, but the immediate cause of her death was a stroke of apoplexy, suffered two days ago. Until that time she had been up and about the house.

The deceased had spent practically her whole life in Hudson. She was the daughter of the late Charles Prentiss, who was an expert machinist and for many years maintained an extensive shop where the Hudson Fibre works is now located, he being the inventor and manufacturer of agricultural, horse-power and threshing machines.

Miss Prentiss was a woman with many good qualities of character, and by her friends in the neighborhood, and especially her relatives, much sorrow will be felt at her departure. She was a Universalist in belief and a strong believer in the doctrines of that church. Her only surviving relative is Joseph W. Prentiss, a brother, who is employed as proofreader on the Troy Record.
