Deaths of the Week

William L. Ryder of North Salem died suddenly at his home last Thursday, March 22. He had been ill only a few days with pleurisy and pneumonia and finally meningitis developed. He was a good carpenter and plumber and his services were in great demand. He was in his 44th year. Funeral services were largely attended on Monday at the Universalist church, Rev. Frederick T. Nelson officiating. He leaves a widow, one son, his mother, one sister and a brother, Dr. Ernest Ryder, of Purdys. He was a cousin of Hillyer, Clayton, and Stephen Ryder, of Carmel.
